

A Friend
by Mary Houseman

From the day that we are born
Till the day that life ends
At sometime or other
We all need a friend

Some one to understand as we go through life
And always willing to share
Patiently listening to what we say
And show that they really do care

Some one to turn to for honest advice
Though not always what you'd agree
But thoughtfully explaining the reason why
Then you will eventually see

Some one to share in a secret or joke
And taking it just the right way
Helping out when ever they can
Thinking of others each day

What would life be if we hadn't a friend
Why not worth living I fear
For a friend is some one who is faithful and kind
And treasured each day of the year
